

NAME: Alessandra Di Pisa
DATE OF BIRTH: 7 January 1977
NATIONALITY: Swedish
MARITAL STATUS: Single

I'm enthusiastic, whether dining at the latest five-star restaurant, browsing a bazaar, or hitting the opening night of the latest hot spot, my lust for life is contagious. Friends and strangers alike count themselves fortunate to have met me because I'm a walking carnival. Whether it's a four-alarm dance party or a night out with friends the fun cup runs over and gets all over everyone. My ache for excitement can take me from the slopes of Switzerland to the Coral Reef in Australia - tough I might pass up a free trip to either of these spots to throw darts at a map and do my own exploring. It's tough to keep up with an enthusiast like me. Especially since words like 'commitment' and 'intimacy' are like garlic to my vampire-style of praying. I'm all about diversion. I just have to be sure my high-test lifestyle isn't producing a smoke screen to cover deeper issues in my life. If I can keep my appetites in check and learn to contemplate life in-stead of consume it my journey will be much more fulfilling.

Developing discipline is hardest for me, but the reward will be some of the best songs, plays, performances, books and comedy routines ever produced. I have a diverse array of interests. I possess an inspiring zest for life and abound with creativity. I seek venues to express my thoughts and feelings. My personality and beliefs shine through in most of the work I do.

My dream event is the Tony Awards! From The Producers to Proof, from Mamma Mia to Thoroughly Modern Millie - my dream event takes me to Radio City Music Hall for a night of glamour, style and an excitement that can only happen in the theatre. And while I'm there to celebrate the stage, I won't be surprised if I end up rubbing elbows with movie stars as they come back to their theatre roots. Other awards shows might steal the spotlight for big entrances and fashion faux pas, but the Tony's are meant to honour the age-old tradition of acting. I'm heading to the Big Apple and dreams are made in this city.